

Abstract

A golf putting practice device comprising a disk, the disk having an annular bottom portion, an annular central portion and an annular top portion, the annular bottom and the annular top portion being substantially similar in height, the central portion forming an annular outwardly extending member extending from said bottom and top portion and forming in cross section a substantially truncated conical configuration.